(There is a more detailed guide on adding email accounts later on).

The BlackBerry email accounts screen

Now you have set the account up it is important to familiarise yourself with the BlackBerry email accounts screen as there are several features and options you should be aware of. The layout of the Screen is simple. It shows you the email accounts you currently have setup with your BlackBerry and Account Management options on the left of the screen (if you have not paired any other email addresses before, the list will only contain the o2email.co.uk address that you set up initially). An example of this screen is shown below.

Settings

The Settings section allows you to perform administrative tasks. Here you can find standard elements such as changing your password and language, but more importantly, it is in this section that you can change your handheld PIN should you have to replace your BlackBerry.

Adding an email address

The BlackBerry Internet Service allows you to add up to ten POP3 / IMAP email addresses to your BlackBerry. The result is that you can receive email that has been sent to your various email addresses (be it work or personal email addresses) all on a single device. To add an email address, from the Home Screen, click on .

Add e-mail account

To add an e-mail account, enter the e-mail address and the password that is used to access the e-mail account. If you need help determining what password to enter, click here.

In this window enter the details of the email account you wish to pair with the BlackBerry. After entering your details, click on the 'Next' button and you will be shown a confirmation that you have successfully configured access to the email address.

If you see the An error occurred during email account validation or We were unable to configure this email account message, it is the result of one of the following:

1. The integration failed because incorrect account information was entered. Repeat the process above with the correct information.
2. The integration is not complete because you must enter additional or other alternative information.

Once you have paired all of the email accounts you wish to integrate with the BlackBerry, you will need Edit your Email's General Settings. With the options here you can set your friendly name under Your name. You can also set up a useful feature whereby if anyone replies to an email you have sent them, it will be sent to another email address of your choosing by simply typing the email address in the Reply To field. Your Signature can also be edited from this screen, which appears in all outgoing emails sent from your BlackBerry. Once everything is filled out, click 'Save.'
